PROGRAMME OVERVIEW

To be a great leader you will need to inspire people to follow you, not your rules. A manager needs to treat employees like they make a difference and in return they will. In today's world employers need to motivate employees at every opportunity in order to achieve extraordinary results for the company. The "boss is always right" phase has passed; teamwork now plays a significant role in an organisation's success. This programme will help individuals gain the attributes of an exceptional leader who will be responsible for developing and efficiently managing a team with the use of modern practices.

NOC Manager – Digicel

The Post Graduate Diploma for General Managers programme allowed me to use real world examples and problems rather than made up scenarios. I found the courses to be particularly engaging and welcoming in the exchange of ideas and thoughts. I have found that my education has prepared me exceptionally well. Without question, the program from day one will continue to have enormous value and impact on my career. I believe it has made me a better person and most importantly a better leader. Additionally, the learning environment was great, my professors were amazingly helpful, and I've enjoyed working with my classmates on group projects. Even though it's not a traditional classroom setting, the courses are laid out in such a way that I am able to apply my newly learned knowledge to real-life situations.
